Program Overview

This symposium is designed to educate researchers, scientists, and health care providers in cancer genetics by presenting cutting-edge data from renowned BRCA1/2 researchers. This symposium will provide new information on the basic biology of known cancer susceptibility genes. In addition, progress in cancer screening and prevention as well as ongoing work in targeted therapy for BRCA1/2 mutation carriers will be discussed through a series of lectures and panel discussions. Attendees will have the opportunity to network with colleagues working in the field.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

At the completion of this symposium, attendees should be able to:

- Discuss new research on the basic biology of BRCA1 and BRCA2 and other homologous repair deficiency genes.
- Describe current ethical, legal and social issues associated with carrying a BRCA1/2 mutation.
- Review new approaches to screening and prevention of hereditary breast, ovarian, pancreatic and prostate cancer.
- Discuss new advances in treatment for mutation carriers of BRCA1/2 and other known cancer susceptibility genes.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

Healthcare providers including medical oncology, surgical oncology, gynecology oncology, ob-gyn, genetic counselors, primary care physicians and nurses/nurse practitioners who are interested in the genetics of BRCA1/2 related cancers.
